Mrs. Charles Leonard's Children
Oried in Vain for Mamma.

She Was in the Hands of an Assaulter and Dying.

The Supposed Murderer Captured in Keyport While Waiting for a Steamer.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 28.—The dead body of Mrs. Charles T. Leonard, wife of a farmer and mother of three children, was found near her home last night with a cord tightly wound about her neck and the skull crushed in. She had been murdered, and, as it now appears, while resisting the efforts of an assaulter.

The body was found by the woman's husband, who at the same time discovered that Louis Harriot, one of his farm hands, was missing.

When Leonard returned from his work in the field last night he found his three children crying for their mamma. She had gone out, he said, during the afternoon and had not returned. While looking for her about the place Leonard almost stumbled over her dead body.

News of the tragedy spread among the neighbors, some of whom then remembered to have seen Harriot walking hurriedly towards the Highlands just before dusk.
There was blood upon his clothes, too, they remembered, but they had paid little attention to this at the time, as some farmers in the neighborhood were butchering hogs and they thought Harriot also might be doing so.

Officers at once began searching for Harriot, but without success. He was not seen until last night, when he was arrested at Keyport, where he was intended to leave for New York.

Coroner Amie Poetta, of Navesink, commenced an inquest this morning. An examination of the body showed a contusion of the forehead, inflicted by what is known as a "club" or "bludgeon" of some kind. A rope was wound tightly three times around her neck, and tied in knots. Her face was almost unrecognizable on account of its discoloration.

Dr. John H. Yamater and H. A. Hendrickson, of this town, made the post-mortem examination, which showed a compound fracture on the right side of the skull. The rope wound around her neck would, in their opinion, have caused death had the blow with the fish-plate not been dealt.

After viewing the remains the coroner adjusted the inquest until Monday.

Mrs. Leonard was a most estimable woman.

Her maiden name was Grover. She was thirty-eight years old and well favored in personal appearance and accomplishments.

Harriot is a native of Lorraine, aged about 32. It is thought the crime resulted from an attempt to assault Mrs. Leonard, and that she was killed by the blows of the fish-plate.

Harriot was employed by Mr. Leonard on Nov. 15 at the employment agency of Frederick R. Barndon, 120 Greenwich street, New York.

Mr. Leonard's home is along the bay shore, a mile from here. It is an elegant home, and all its surroundings are in good taste.

Mr. Leonard, the husband of the murdered woman, and a number of farmers from Atlantic Highlands, came over here as soon as they heard that Harriot was arrested.

They confronted him in his cell. They immadiately identified him as the man who was seen hanging about the house of the murdered woman, and afterwards seen with his hands and clothes covered with blood.

As soon as Mr. Leonard saw him, he was sprung at Harriot's throat and throttled him, he had not been restrained by his friends.

He suggested to get at Harriot, but was withheld. "You scoundrel, why did you murder my wife? What has she ever done to you?"

"I didn't kill her," replied Harriot.
He refused to give any explanation of his whereabouts yesterday evening or to tell how he had spent his time. There is a good deal of excitement in the neighborhood over the murder.

Although ignorant and unsatisfactory as a farm hand Harriot never exhibited any signs of a brutal nature.

Mr. Leonard was at work on the grounds of the Leonard avenue station, about a quarter of a mile from the house, yesterday and Harriot was hauling manure from the barnyard.

After dinner both returned to their work.
Mrs. Leonard had completed her housework, and between 2 and 3 o'clock sent her children out to call on some neighbors, while she sat down in the kitchen bay window and began painting a little sketch of the ocean as viewed from her home.

Harriot drew one load of manure and left the team standing in the barnyard. What transpired later Harriot alone knows, but there are strong circumstances that point directly to his guilt.

Will Ex-King Milan of Serbia Command the Shah's Cavalry?

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
LONDON, Nov. 28.—The election in the Eastern Division of Dorset to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the death of Mr. George Hawkeworth Bond, Conservative, was held yesterday.

The candidate of the Conservatives was Mr. Humphrey Sturt, son of Lord Alington.
The Gladstonian candidate was the Hon.
Pascoe Glynn, who represented the division from November, 1885, until the general election of the following summer, when he was defeated by Mr. Bond.

The result of the election was as follows:
Mr. Humphrey Sturt (Conservative), 4,421; Hon. Pascoe Glynn (Gladstonian), 4,074.
Sturt's majority, 347.

At the last election the vote stood as follows:
Mr. George H. Bond (Conservative), 4,317; Hon. Pascoe Glynn (Gladstonian), 3,902. Bond's majority, 415.

Funeral of England's Dead Ambassador to France.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
PARIS, Nov. 28.—The funeral of the Right Hon. Edward Bulwer Lytton, Earl of Lytton, the British Ambassador at Paris, who died suddenly in this city on Tuesday last, was held today in the English church, which was crowded in every part.

The celebrated French painter, M. Leon Bonnat, has just finished a portrait of the Earl, and this picture was placed upon an easel which stood at the head of the casket.

After the services the body was conveyed to the railway station en route for England.
Five thousand persons have called at the British Embassy and inscribed their names in a book of respect to the dead Ambassador.

FOUGHT TO THE DEATH.

Farmers Break Each Others Skulls in a Boundary Dispute.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
LIMA, O., Nov. 28.—Joseph Wolff and John Miller, two farmers, fought to the death at Wapakoneta yesterday, the trouble being a dispute over a line fence.

A week ago Wolff built a fence on a line with Miller's barn to keep his stock on his farm. Wolff asserted that the fence was exactly on the line, while Miller asserted that it was not.

Miller armed himself with an axe and commenced to demolish the fence, when Wolff sprang upon him with a hatchet, and a fight ensued. Their skulls were broken. It is impossible for either to recover.

"L" TRAFFIC WAS BLOCKED.

Sixth Avenue Trains Delayed by an Accident to a Motor.

An extraordinary delay occurred on the Sixth Avenue L. road at Twenty-third street this morning by which thousands of working people were detained for nearly thirty minutes.

A downtown motor street train reached the Twenty-third street station at 7:45 o'clock, and just as the engineer received the signal to start, a cylinder-head of his motor fell over a line fence.

After twenty minutes had been wasted in an effort to remedy the defect, the disabled train was pushed down toward the city by the train immediately behind. No stops were made at stations below Twenty-third street until Bleeker and Grand streets were reached.
